

Annotation

In the bachelor's project, we will examine Tesla's coil principles, their technical and practical applications, and create a device capable of generating plasma corresponding to a musical signal. This project will be interesting for engineers, students, and a wider audience, as it combines engineering, science, and art.