

There is no unified classification system for trace fossils. Scientists have different opinions on this issue. The report will discuss ichnological classification systems and the role of ethology in the classification of trace fossils.